Quality early education and school age care is dependent on meeting the individual needs of all students in the classroom. Many times, students with special needs and abilities fail to receive equal access to the learning supports they need to thrive. As CCR&R professionals, we have a responsibility to help early care providers strengthen their approach to inclusion and learning equity.

This month, the NC CCR&R School Age PLG is excited to have Dr. Adam Holland share tools and tips geared to help CCR&R professionals guide early education providers towards a more inclusive classroom. Dr. Holland is an Implementation Specialist at Frank Porter Graham Child Development Institute at UNC-Chapel Hill. His expertise lies around supporting challenging behaviors, STEM inclusion, and supporting healthy child development.

This PLG session is open to all CCR&R staff seeking to expand their skills and help develop the next generation of great early education teachers. Please register in the box above. For questions, contact Jon Williams at williams.jon@swcdcinc.org.
